WAR ZONE EXPERIENCE

MRS. ANNA L. SMITH HEARS FROM FRIENDS WHO HAVE BEEN IN WAR ZONE

Mrs. Anna L. Smith of the local millinery firm of Smith & Miller, has just received a very interesting account from friends residing in Meyersdale, Pa., who were touring in the war zone at the time of the commencement of the present strife. The following is written by John Wiley Kendall, who with his aunt, Miss Mattie Kendall, were members of a party that tried to escape Germany from Nurnberg at the declaration of war.

The war was just as much of a surprise to the Europeans as it was to the Americans. The first we heard of the war was in Lucerne, Switzerland, on the 30th of July. There our waiter at the Hotel Du Lac told us that without doubt Germany would declare war within two days, and that we ought to remain in Switzerland till we saw how things developed. But we had seen all of Switzerland that our itinerary called for and were ready for Germany; and we knew that if war were declared we could not cross the border into Germany. We also knew that if we did succeed in getting into Germany, and if war were declared, the German government would have to see us out safely; so we decided to make a dive for Munich.

Our trip from Lucerne to Munich was first by rail, then by boat to Lindau and then by rail to Munich. Things went all right till we got to Lindau. There it seemed as though there were more people who wanted to go to Munich than the trains could possibly carry in a week. After waiting for about an hour among enthusiastic crowds, we finally got a train for Munich. The run is usually made in about two hours, but it took us from 7 p. m. till 12:30. We were packed very tightly in small compartments, so we didn't enjoy the little journey as we might have.

In Munich that night there was tense excitement everywhere. We heard cannon being moved past our hotel in the middle of the night and until sunrise there were large crowds of people all over the city singing "Der Wacht Am Rhein" and other German patriotic songs. The next day, all during the day, bulletins were posted telling when and where certain corps were to mobilize; and at 6 p. m. the bulletin telling of the declaration of war was posted.

By that time we saw that there was really going to be war, so we decided to try to reach England. We knew that it would take a week or two to do so, because the trains were not running on schedule time and were going very slowly, and all together transportation was crippled very much.

The reason transportation was very crippled was because all the railroads are owned by the government and they only hire men who have served their term in the army. Every man in Germany who is physically fit must serve so many years in the army, and when the war broke out all the engineers and trainmen had to go to war, so the government had to get the men who were not fit for war to run the trains, and these new men not being experienced could not run very fast. Another reason that the trains could not go fast was that all army trains were despatched through, so the passenger trains which were then secondary, were side tracked a good many times.

The next day, which was Sunday, we started out. We got as far as Nurnberg that night. The run is usually made in 2½ hours, but it took us 8. During the ride we suffered so many inconveniences that we decided to wait in Nurnberg until the mobilization was over, so we could get better trains for Amsterdam and then cross the North Sea to England.

Our hotel was a very nice one, and Nurnberg is so interesting that we didn't mind staying there. It is almost twice as large as Washington, so you see it is a pretty large city. For the first four days that we were there nearly every foreigner was arrested as a spy. One poor man was taken for a spy from three different countries, namely—France, Servia and Russia. The poor fellow was nearly scared to death. I was arrested only twice. As soon as a soldier spoke to you, no matter whether he was arresting you or not, a large crowd of people gathered around you, sometimes as many as two thousand. But four days of this arresting was enough. In that time they had even arrested some of their own army officers as spies. At about that time the Kaiser issued an order that any German who insulted or mistreated in any way an Ameri-

BUSY SESSION CONSIDERING CITY'S WELFARE

LOMITA IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION ASKS FOR CONSIDERATION —HEARING OF PROTEST ON MYRTLE STREET — BOARD PLANS TO TAKE OVER GLENDALE CONSOLIDATED AND MIRADERO WATER SYSTEMS OCT. 1 —DEPARTMENT HEADS REPORT

The regular meeting of the board of trustees of the city of Glendale was held at the city hall September 21st at 7:30 p. m. Those present were President O. A. Lane and Trustees Charles Grist, J. S. Thompson, A. W. Tower and Geo. E. Williams.

Mr. J. W. Usilton presented a copy of a resolution adopted by the citizens of Lomita Park and vicinity as the Lomita Improvement Association to the effect that the trustees of the city of Glendale be requested to condemn the crossings at Chestnut and Seventh streets and Brand boulevard and upon gaining possession to compel the Pacific Electric Railway Company to bring their tracks to the grade of the street at Seventh, Maple, Lomita and Chestnut streets, and further that the citizens residing and owning property south of Colorado street to the Tropico city limits, on and adjacent to Brand boulevard, request the board of trustees to have the lots in that locality cleared of weeds and rubbish.

The city clerk read to the committee presenting this resolution a copy of case No. 680 before the railroad commission in the matter of constructing street crossings at the points mentioned, notifying W. E. Evans, city attorney, the P. E. Ry. company and the board of trustees of another hearing before Commissioner Edgerton on Monday, Oct. 5.

The city attorney stated that considerable criticism had been attached to the denial by the railroad commission of the application to establish these crossings, but that the case had been reopened at the commission's own initiative, but that if our application be denied again, the city can await a decision by the supreme court, there being a question whether the railroad commission has jurisdiction in the case.

On motion the resolution was received and placed on file. The question of clearing the vacant lots of weeds and rubbish was referred to the city manager.

Attorney Watkins appeared in the case of the protest to the proposed work on Myrtle street, a number of protestants being present. Mr. Watkins took the position that what was considered by the board as a protest was in fact a remonstrance, entitled to recognition even after time for actual protest had expired, but that it was in the discretion of the board to grant or not to grant the requests of the protestants.

Mr. Laury and Mr. Ashbough argued against the proposed work for the alleged reason that Myrtle street was but sparsely settled and the erection of new residences there would carry with it the tearing up of the street in many places for the installation of gas and water connections, leaving a newly improved street with many depressions and elevations. It was their opinion that these public utilities might be put into the street before its improvement. Also because there should first be a larger water main laid in the street.

Mr. Houston represented the petitioners for the work, saying there are twenty-five houses on the street, the owners of twenty of which wanted the improvement; that from Columbus avenue west there is now a water pipe sufficient for future needs laid along the alley, and that only in the remainder of the street a new main might be required.

The board, after considering the fact that it is not practicable to postpone street improvement until all the public utilities might be installed, the public service corporations being under no obligation to lay down their services when required for the purpose aforesaid, while the city of Glendale is not ready to undertake any work in connection with the water systems as yet, and as it is but just to consider the wishes of the people owning homes and living on the street. On motion of Trustee Thompson the protest, remonstrance, was denied by the following vote, to-wit:

Ayes—Lane, Thompson, Tower and Williams.

Noes—Grist.

Mr. M. J. Spencer of 441 South Maryland avenue presented a verbal protest against the proposed erection of a one-story store building at the northwest corner of Fifth street and Maryland avenue, facing Fifth street, across the frontage of the lot, as the building would run close to his house and shut out all the light and cause great inconvenience to his residence.

On motion of Trustee Tower the question was referred to the city attorney for opinion as to whether the board of trustees will be in a position to take any action.

Mr. Ballou asked for information concerning the proposed work on Oak street that is to be extended for a short space beyond Pacific avenue. The city engineer explained that this was necessary for proper protection against damage by flood water, but that the portion of the work inquired about would be of lighter construction so that it could be altered as the exigencies might demand when Pacific avenue is improved.

The clerk read a communication from Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher, attorneys of Los Angeles, containing an opinion the proceedings of the city of Glendale in the issuance of municipal water bonds. The opinion is to the effect that the proceedings have been duly and regularly taken and that the bonds when sold constitute legal and binding obligation of the city of Glendale.

On motion of Trustee Grist the letter was received and placed on file. The city attorney suggested that the letter be placed on record so that copies may readily be made and delivered to bond buyers.

Miss Marr petitioned the board that before the finished surface of Opechee way improvement is applied steps be taken to insure to the entire frontage on that street the necessary water supply, to prevent tearing up of the street, so far as this might be arranged without cost to the city.

On motion of Trustee Tower referred to the manager of the lighting and water departments.

A petition from Miss Marr was read asking that plans be drawn for a water distributing system to cover tract No. 250 from Verdugo road west to include Bonita drive, showing the location of all the pipes of the system as it is to be installed in the future. Referred to the manager of the water system, who stated that he would draw up a sketch of what he plans to do in that connection, but that such sketch would be subject to changes according as his general plans might develop. So ordered.

The city engineer submitted an estimate of the cost of clearing the channel of the Verdugo wash, as previously proposed, to-wit: $672 for removing gravel and $75 for bank protection; a total of $747.

On motion of Trustee Thompson the same was received and placed on file, this work to be undertaken as soon as practicable.

It being the third Monday, the regular demands were referred to the finance committee.

Demands previously referred to the finance committee were reported favorably by said committee and warrants were ordered drawn in payment of the same.

The city manager brought up the question of the control of the city's street traffic. He said that the running of motor trucks with trailers, as is now practiced, is a menace to the community, and may prove a source of serious accidents, besides giving our good streets more than ordinary wear. He suggested that the city's traffic ordinance be amended. On motion referred to the city attorney.

On motion, ordinance No. 244, an ordinance of the city of Glendale requiring the removal of inflammable weeds from property in the city of Glendale, was taken up for the third reading and final passage.

Read and on motion accepted and adopted.

On motion, ordinance No. 245, an ordinance establishing the grade on a portion of Eighth street, was taken up for the third reading.

Read and on motion accepted and adopted.

Trustee Thompson offered resolution No. 740, a resolution ordering certain work to be done on a portion of Myrtle street, which was read and on motion accepted and adopted by the following vote, to-wit:

Ayes—Lane, Thompson, Tower and Williams.

Noes—Grist.

The city engineer presented a map of tract No. 2315, being a subdivision of lots 4 and 5, tract No. 1173.

Trustee Tower offered resolution No. 741, a resolution approving and adopting a map of tract No. 2315, which was read and on motion accepted and adopted.

The manager of the lighting department submitted estimates of the cost of those portions of additions and improvements of water plants to be purchased, which have not been included in the figures fixed by the railroad commission.

On motion of Trustee Thompson the figures of the Miradero and Glendale Consolidated companies were accepted.

GLENDALE, BEAUTIFUL

COMMITTEES OF THIS ORGANIZATION GIVE REPORTS AT MEETING

Certain officers of the Glendale City Beautiful Association met at the city hall Tuesday evening and listened to carefully prepared reports of committees.

Mrs. Charles H. Toll, president of the association, was present and in the course of the evening presented some very valuable and practical suggestions.

C. H. Bott, chairman of one of the committees, was also present and gave an outline of the beautifying that should be done in Glendale preparatory to receiving so many visitors in 1915.

One of his suggestions was the flowers be cultivated on the ground surrounding the reservoir of the Verdugo Springs Water Company's reservoir.

Mrs. Toll and Mrs. Grosvenor announced that a beautification meeting will be held in the high school auditorium Oct. 6th, at which time Dana W. Bartlett of Los Angeles will address those present. Two minute speeches will be made by twenty representative citizens of this community.

Dr. Jessie Russell suggested that the parents be notified of this meeting by the children through the schools.

Mrs. Butterfield, a member of the drinking fountain committee, agrees with other members of the committee that drinking fountains should be installed as soon as possible.

The question of a rest-room came in for its share of consideration. A vote of thanks was extended to the Lomita Improvement Association and the Pioneer Association on account of the progressive spirit these associations are showing in organizing for the purpose of making local improvements.

A meeting of all the committees of the association will be held Thursday evening, Oct. 1.

SPELLING BEE

An old-fashioned "spelling bee," presided over by the Rev. Henry of the Tropico M. E. church, was greatly enjoyed recently by a goodly number of church people who bravely went through the ordeal of battling with the brainy old soldier, Webster. After all the scouts, as it were, were felled, those present returned to their childhood days by reciting and applauding some of those dear old nursery rhymes we all used to love.

Delicious refreshments followed and served as a fitting climax to a most enjoyable and delightfully informal affair.

The bill of Ed Kinser for injuries while attending fire drill previously referred to the finance committee, was referred to the city manager.

Petition for refund of a fine of $10 imposed upon C. Walker referred to city manager for further investigation.

An application from H. H. Eddy to hunt in tract No. 250, with consent of the property owners, was granted. Adjournment.

HOYLAND-KENDALL

LOCAL MISS BECOMES BRIDE OF LOS ANGELES BUSINESS MAN

Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock a very pretty home wedding took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kendall, 1451 Riverdale drive, when Mr. Philip Hoyland led their charming daughter, Miss Mazie Kendall, to the altar. The bride and groom walked into the spacious parlor, which was beautifully decorated for the occasion, to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march softly rendered by Miss May Merrill of Los Angeles.

The bride, who was unattended, wore a beautiful white woolen full-plaited skirt and crepe de chine waist and carried a large bouquet of Cecil Brunner roses.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. Jackson Hartsell, pastor of the West Glendale M. E. church. The bride and groom will take an extended automobile tour to San Diego and other points and will return to make their home in Los Angeles, where Mr. Hoyland is interested in business.

A number of friends and relatives were present to witness the happy nuptials and to wish the young couple a long and happy life, also to enjoy the splendid repast so hospitably served by Mr. and Mrs. Kendall.

Eshom and Ward will, however, continue in the business at the same address, 409 Brand boulevard, and will give the same careful attention to listings, rentals, town and country property and ranches as heretofore, as well as act as agents for the same fire insurance companies and the Automobile Club of Southern California.

STARTS ON LONG AUTO TRIP

Wilbur, who has been connected with the Glendale Consolidated Water Company for the past eight years, and his father, who is 78 years of age, left Glendale on Wednesday at noon for Kansas City, Mo. They are making the trip in a Ford runabout and will take the Santa Fe trail through Needles and Prescott, Ariz. After a stop at Kansas City, they will tour Iowa and Kansas, visiting friends in Kansas, in which state they resided before coming to California. They expect to return to Glendale in about three months.

ONE O'CLOCK LUNCHEON

Mrs. J. H. Regan and Mrs. D. A. Cushman, both of Glendale, proved themselves charming hostesses Tuesday of this week when they entertained most pleasingly at a 1 o'clock luncheon in the home of the former, 1440 West Broadway.

Fuschias and fern made very pretty decorations for the occasion and were arranged in tall vases, shower like, both in the living-room and dining-room, where the delicious repast was served. SUMMER SCHOOLS' INFLUENCE INCREASES

Contemporary literature dealing with education in the United States often strikes the note of prophecy concerning better use of the summer months. The coming war on waste includes reform of the long vacation period. Children of the cities and the suburbs cannot utilize it for labor to the extent that rural children do, and a majority of the school pupils of the country are urban in environment, using the word urban to include the larger towns as well as the cities. Consequently the more progressive a community's educational program is the sooner does it reckon with the needs of its children during July and August as well as during December and January. Equally solicitous is it for wise use of the vacation time by the teaching staff, use that implies study of professional problems as well as cessation of school routine. For a teacher to rusticate and do nothing else during vacation may be best in some cases, but it is not the soundest policy for general acceptance; and states that are making provision for summer school attendance of teachers and that are crediting them with work done there are sagacious. Cities that, like Pittsburg, can provide public school teachers with opportunities to visit academic centers and large cities and for a season to study professional problems and gain cultural ends, profit by the plan.

To explain the swiftly mounting attendance on classes offered in summer by normal schools, colleges and universities it is necessary to reckon with this increased enrollment of public school teachers. They are combining study and play more than they used to. The Journal of Education puts the 1914 attendance at 100,000. More than formerly the south and west have experimented with the plan, and are finding it beneficial.

If the teacher-pupils were the only persons profiting by the plan it would deserve to work on; but they are not, as the periodical mentioned points out. The teacher who has to teach pupils so many of whom are teachers profits by the contact with an adult, critical, candid sort of learner, who knows what he or she wants and whether it is being furnished, and who does not hesitate to criticize either a given course of instruction or its mode of presentation. Such a test of teaching power, if it works, is an asset for the instructor when he resumes his regular courses in the autumn.

Signs all point to a revised time schedule for schools, colleges and universities of the future, one that is less a matter of tradition and more a product of contemporary need. There appears no likelihood that the recreational interests of pupils and teachers are to be forgotten during the process of adjustment, for the play element in living and in education now has a theoretical backing not to be overthrown easily. What in all probability will happen, we think, will be a wiser distribution of the work and play periods, and a truer sense of proportion in defining the time and length of seasons of recreation. Moreover thousands of persons have yet to learn that rest is not synonymous with loafing.

Over $150,000,000 of emergency money has been issued by the United States government up to date, and this, it seems, should go far toward moving not only the crops but the summer vacationists.

NOTICE OF INTENTION OF THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS TO FORM A STORM WATER DISTRICT

Notice is hereby given that the Board of Supervisors of the County of Los Angeles, State of California, did, at a meeting of said board held on the tenth day of August, 1914, adopt a resolution declaring the intention of said board to form and organize a storm water district, to be known as Verdugo Storm Water District with boundaries as hereinafter set forth, in accordance with the provisions of an act of the Legislature of the State of California, entitled, "An act to provide for the formation, organization and government of storm water districts, for the purpose of protecting the land therein from damage from storm water and from the waters of any innavigable stream, water course, canyon or wash, for the construction of the necessary works of protection by said district, and for the levying of taxes and assessments to pay for the cost of constructing, repairing and maintaining such improvements," approved March 13, 1909, and acts amendatory thereto, for the purpose of protecting the lands within the boundaries of said proposed district from damage by storm water and from the waters of the Verdugo Wash and other washes within said district, and for the purpose of spreading, conserving, storing, retaining, or causing to percolate into the soil within said district, any or all of the said waters, and fixing the time and place for a hearing of said matter and of the petition heretofore filed in the office of the Board of Supervisors asking for the formation of said district, and that the time so fixed for said hearing is Tuesday, the thirteenth day of October, 1914, at ten o'clock A. PEANUT TAFFY

Put two cupfuls of sugar in a granite saucepan over the fire and heat it until it turns brown and all melts. It must not burn, but must brown through. Then add a little lemon juice and pour it over shelled and skinned peanuts arranged in buttered pans. Let it harden, when it should be brittle.

ALL'S WELL THAT ENDS WELL

The other day a dejected-looking and apparently disabled young fellow approached Mr. Frank Kuntzner, the genial proprietor of the Glendale Wallpaper and Paint Store on Brand boulevard, stating that he was out of work, broke and hungry. As Mr. Kuntzner still held a letter in his hand informing him that he was the successful competitor for furnishing paint, wallpaper and hardware for a large apartment house in Los Angeles, he was feeling pretty good.

"Come with me," he said to the man, leading the way to the Goldfish restaurant. He ordered the attendant to give the man a square meal and charge it to him. The appetite of the man was marvelous, as when Mr. Kuntzner called some time later he found a bill for $1.75 against him.

The man claiming to be a painter, affiliated with organized labor in Sacramento, Mr. Kuntzner directed him to Mr. L. Lund, who conducts the Broadway Garage Exchange, and who is the president of the Glendale Painters' and Paperhangers' Local. Mr. Lund in a moment sized the man up as a paperhanger, but slowly elicited the information that he was a card-carrying man, connected at Sacramento, but had no credentials with him, as he had just sent them to headquarters to substantiate a disability claim. He was not able to work, but needed money to get back to Los Angeles, from whence he had recently arrived.

Mr. Lund having been affiliated with organized labor for nearly 20 years, knew that the man was lying, so he suggested that the man go with him to a telegraph office, wire his local at Sacramento, and if his story was O. K., it would be the duty of the Glendale Local to care for him, who in turn would be reimbursed by his Local.

The man had forgotten everything which would connect him with his Local and complained that Mr. Lund was not informed—had not acted as a gentleman, and had not treated him as such.

"Well," said Mr. Lund, "if such is your opinion, just wait until I connect with the chief of police." At this suggestion the $1.75 feed came to the man's aid; his disability vanished and he assumed the attitude of an all-'round athlete. He flew at Mr. Lund, who at that moment, with palette board in one hand, covered with small paints of varied colors, was engaged in the act of depicting some arctic scenery on an ice wagon. Being taken unawares, the rainbow tints were spattered over his "biled" shirt and forty-five-dollar suit which his wife had just presented him on the 57th anniversary of his advent into Holland.

What the results might have been it would be difficult to conjecture, but just at the psychological moment Mr. Kuntzner happened in to get his new auto, which he had recently purchased of Mr. Lund, and he with the assistance of Mr. Perkins and son, who conduct a repair shop in the same building, overcame the super-human efforts of the "invalid." Lund effected contact between his boot and a spot on the man's anatomy where it would serve the best interests of the cause, and the man took a short cut across the fields for Los Angeles.

As Mr. Kuntzner felt under obligation for having directed the man to Lund, he suggested making good. The whole bunch claiming Holland as their nativity and Glendale being "dry," they could not properly celebrate here, so they hied themselves to a country club with which they are connected, Kuntzner doing the "elegant" to the "king's taste," and all is well.

ENTERTAINS LADIES' AID

It was in a very informal but delightful manner that Mrs. John Horsch entertained about twenty-four members of the Ladies' Aid of the Presbyterian church in her Cedar street home Tuesday afternoon. The ladies met just for a social hour, during which time Mrs. F. Brooks read a paper on colored people and the hostess served delicious tea and cake.

Dark red dahlias were used in embellishing the rooms given over to the affair and will also glow in the same place this afternoon, as the Missionary Society of the church is meeting with Mrs. Horsch in order to perfect plans for a large entertainment that will be given in honor of the new members of the church some time in October.

A young man who had joined the army and gone to the Philippines sent a sablegram to his father in a little "up-country" town. The day after the message arrived the father was speaking about it to a friend.

"Great thing, that telegraph, Josh," remarked the father. "Jes' think of that message comin' all them thousands of miles!"

"Yes," was the hearty response of Josh, "and so thunderin' quick, too."

"Thunderin' quick!" exclaimed the father. "Well, I should say so. When I got that message the mucilage on the envelope wasn't dry yet." —Philadelphia Telegraph.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. McGinnis of 422 Orange street, accompanied by their charming little daughter Dorothy, have returned from two weeks spent with Dr. Dawson at La Crescenta, to which place they went on account of the ill health of their little girl, who was greatly benefited by the change.

NORTH GLENDALE

Mrs. Sam Webb and Mrs. M. B. Wilson of 1321 Valley View road, with Mrs. Charles Sharp of 1524 Lorraine street, form a party who are enjoying the day in Los Angeles and who are luncheon guests of Mrs. Webb's daughter, Mrs. John McMillan of West Thirty-ninth place.

Mr. O. S. Sampson of 1600 Ruth street was most delightfully surprised last Sunday by the arirval of his sister, Mrs. Emma Shaw of Denver, who has been visiting relatives and friends in Tulare county and other sections of California. A trip to the beach and other features of entertainment were enjoyed by the happy family party. Mrs. Shaw left early Monday morning.

COMMISSION WILL GIVE REHEARING

Inasmuch as there was considerable dissatisfaction with the recent action of the railroad commission regarding the crossings over the Pacific Electric tracks at Chestnut and Seventh streets, President John M. Eshleman announces that Commissioner Edgerton will go over the matter again with great care and the hearing has been set for October 5 at 10 a. m. in Glendale.

SHOULD DEPEND ON PAID ADVERTISING

A number of newspaper and magazine publishers have urged the Panama-Pacific exhibition directors to follow the lead of San Diego by appropriating funds for paid advertising of the exposition. They say that legitimate news about the exposition is the only free space on which such expositions should depend for publicity.

Watch for the Red Auto that makes daily trips to Glendale

Youth is not a time of life. It is not a matter of ripe cheeks, red lips and supple knees; it is a temper of the will, a quality of the imagination, a vigor of the emotions. It is the freshness of the deep springs of life. Nobody grows old by merely living a number of years. People grow old only by deserting their ideals. Years wrinkle the skin; but to give up enthusiasm wrinkles the soul.—Dr. Frank Crane.

can, would be severely dealt with; and that no one should be arrested as a spy except under the strongest suspicions.

Before this order was made a friend of ours from Buffalo who was entering the zoological park was told by a soldier to stop; he did not understand the language and did not do so and was shot at three times. Some Americans who were touring Europe by automobile were considering themselves fortunate in not having to depend on the trains. But when they came to the hotel they were very much surprised to see an officer step up and take their automobile. The German government took all automobiles in Germany for use in the war. They will pay for them after the war is over—Maybe.

On the whole our stay in Nurnberg was a very pleasant one. The people treated us excellently. The Germans have great respect for the Americans. They are willing to trust them to almost any extent. You could go in the stores there and buy anything you wanted and they would send the bill to you in America. Our proprietor was kind too. He offered to loan any American any amount of money he wanted until he got back to America, and said that all he had was ours, too. One day he took all his guests to an inn out in the country along the railroad track to watch the army trains go by. He treated us to beer and coffee and cake. A number of trains went by while we were there and we had a great old time cheering the soldiers and they cheered us.

Another time he took us out to see the Nurnberg Red Cross train. It was wonderful. Every town in Germany has its Red Cross train, which it furnishes and equips itself. The train, which was composed of about thirty coaches, had twenty coaches for the wounded soldiers and each coach held ten. That made it capable of carrying two hundred wounded soldiers. It also had a kitchen and operating room, a supply room and quarters for the surgeons and nurses. On the top of every car is painted a large red cross in a field of white, so that aeroplanes won't drop bombs on them.

The train had been ready for thirty years waiting for this war. The towels and all supplies were in their places, even slippers were under the beds.

The Germans have been preparing for war ever since their last war with France in 1870. They have had enough grain to last them for several years stored away for thirty years, which has been tested every six months. Then, too, every German is a soldier. As I have said before, every man who is physically fit has to serve a certain time in the army. So when this war broke out every German was ready to fight. Now the Germans have every able bodied man from 16 to 50 in the field, which makes an army of 8,000,000 men, with every man a real soldier who has served in the army at some time. Another way in which you may see the magnitude of the army is the fact that every half hour, night or day, for the sixteen days that we were in Nurnberg, and I don't know how long after, a train loaded with soldiers and cannon went by to some front. When a German goes off with his regiment even he himself doesn't know whether he is going to the Russian, French or Belgian frontier, and when his people write him a letter they address it to his regiment and they don't know to what part of the country it goes. Even when the soldier writes back he is not allowed to disclose his position. Every soldier has sewn on the inside of his coat his number so that when he is wounded or dies they know who he is and where to send him. When a soldier is seriously wounded he is sent right to his home town. In every town there is at least one Red Cross hospital and when war is declared they erect several others which are portable ones.

While we were in Nurnberg, the American ladies at the hotel, not having much to do, organized a club to sew for the Red Cross. They made several hundred sheets and about fifty Red Cross night shirts. All of the things were made out of heavy linen. Of the night shirts one sleeve and one whole side are split to be tied with tape, making it convenient to care for and handle the wounded soldiers. They are made of heavy material enabling the patients to be lifted in bed by them.

The German women are a greater help in this war than Americans think. Every woman, even the clerks in the stores, is constantly knitting socks for the soldiers. All girls in the school from the fourth grade up meet for so many hours each day to knit socks for the soldiers. All boys from the fourth grade up meet at a certain time each day and go out into the fields to gather in their grain. Many of the women work with them. The spirit shown by the German nation is wonderful. The soldiers seem willing and almost anxious to die for the Fatherland. One man brought eight sons to town in a spring wagon to send to war and the people crowned him.

After we had been in Nurnberg for a little over two weeks, traffic lightened up enough for us to move on. A special train, composed of ten day coaches, three sleepers, a diner, a provision car and a baggage car, was provided and 240 Americans started for Amsterdam. The train left Nurnberg at 6:30 p. m. on Monday, August 17th, and arrived in Amsterdam at 10:30 a. m. on Wednesday. The run is usually made in about ten hours. At every station the Germans were out to cheer us as we went by. At many of them they served us with hot coffee, lemonade, and Rhine wine and threw flowers in at us. At Mainz they had a large American flag on the station. It must have been twenty feet long. Our trip was along the Rhine and we saw some beautiful scenery. At Cologne we passed through the German line of battle and saw thousands of soldiers and a Zeppelin airship.

At the Holland line our train was held up for some time. A Belgian was found on it with five fingers with rings on in his pocket. The Hollanders fear that the Germans will overrun them as they did the Belgians. Their army is all mobolized and if Germany should attack them they can blow up the dykes and flood any part of their country for protection.

From Holland we crossed the North Sea to England; and at one time we saw twelve battleships and six submarines. The excitement in England is not nearly so great as in Germany. You would hardly know that there is war, if it were not for the newspapers. We saw England hurriedly and set sail from Liverpool on the 26th of August. On the boat many interesting stories were told of experiences in the war-stricken countries. The boat had several hundred more people on it than it was supposed to carry, and many Americans were only too glad to travel steerage.

The steerage meals were terrible, so we carried food from our table to several friends who had to travel steerage. Our boat took a northern course to get out of the way of warships and we passed over the place where the Titanic went down. We arrived in New York City on Sept. 3d, and surely were glad to be home in America.

MAKING USE OF THE OLD DRESS

Another satisfying sign of present-hour tendencies may be seen, we think, in the thought given by women to the possibilities of the discarded dress. Women of other days, who were saving about everything, knew very well how to put their old dresses to the best use. These garments were never thrown away when they had performed their original functions as full sized gowns. On the contrary, it was only then that they came into general family requisition and figured in an endless chain of utilities. Usually, to begin with, the discarded dress of the mother was cut down to fit the eldest daughter. Parts of the goods left over were made into frocks for the small girls. When the elder daughter outgrew her gown it naturally fell to the next daughter, and so it descended, the smaller frocks taking a similar course, perhaps passing ultimately to the girl children of a collateral branch.

There were always odds and ends of the original dress, and in the cutting down process other odds and ends were accumulated, so that neither the father nor any of the boys in the family was ever short of neckties. Rather than that too much uniformity might manifest itself in the home wear, and often with the prime purpose of relieving the monotony while preventing mistakes as to ownership, the scraps were dyed in a variety of colors and shades, and finally, when another dress came down from the mother to take the usual course all the remaining pieces of the first one were gathered together and drawn upon through the years in the making of rag dolls for the grandchildren and in the patching of quilts.

Those were plain, simple, thrifty, honest old days, and the things we are now reading in the fashions and household page of the Monitor about the making of old dresses into tunics, overwaists and such, would seem to justify the entertainment of the thought that the past, in this as in many other respects, has left a heritage of good to the race. The instinct that leads women, heretofore careless, indifferent or extravagant, to making over old things in times like these is not to be lightly treated or lightly valued. Neither is the condition of human affairs that brings this instinct into activity.—

FULLY EQUIPPED

Bennie's mother found the youngster fastening bits of candle to the backs of the geese.

The qualities of honesty, energy, frugality, integrity, are more necessary than ever today, and there is no success without them. They are so often urged that they have become commonplace, but they are really more prized than ever. And any good fortune that comes by such methods is deserved and admirable."

When a letter goes into the waste basket unread, the laugh is on the man who gets the letter rather than on the man who sends it. The man who sends a letter may lose the chance to make one sale; the man who receives it may throw away chances to make many sales. Spare the waste basket and save the business.—Montreal Star.

The opening address was delivered by Dr. Daniel Fox of Pasadena at 11 o'clock a. m. The new location has apparently proved an additional attraction to the college and 123 new students had enrolled up to Saturday. Many more are expected to enroll.

LIBRARIES AND LIBRARIANS

It has been said repeatedly that high school pupils do not know how to use a library intelligently for reference work. Now is the time of year to get them started in the right direction. To do this it might be deemed wise to follow the example of the high school in Salt Lake City, as described in the last annual report of the public library. "The high schools continue to send classes to the library three times a week, in charge of a teacher, for instruction in the use of reference books and the catalogue," says the account. "As this is the third year of such instruction it seems to have proved itself of sufficient value to the students to be beyond the experimental stage, while from the point of view of the library it would be impossible to have a more practical advertisement."

No matter how impecunious a library may be it cannot afford to circulate soiled books, according to Arthur E. Bostwick, author of "The American Public Library." To do so, he explains, "drives from the library people who love cleanliness and it renders ineffectual any action taken by the library board toward improving the care taken of its stock. It is useless, for instance, to insist on clean hands in a children's room if a large proportion of the books are so soiled that a person with clean hands might properly object to handling them. So, also, it seems absurd to caution readers against tearing out one more piece from a volume whose leaves are hanging in tatters or against maltreating a binding that is already hanging by a single thread."

"Libraries in our larger cities and in many smaller ones as well," to quote John Cotton and, "have built many very expensive branch buildings, usually with money given by one of the amazing products of our peculiar economic conditions. Concerning these certain questions may be raised: Are elaborate branches expedient? Could branches be housed to greater advantage in school buildings?

"The elaborate and costly library branch teaches by its mere presence, stirs civic pride in those who reside near it, gives the library a certain dignity and importance which strengthens its hands for its proper work, and has, usually, such meeting rooms as enable it to act to some extent as a general civic and educational center for its immediate neighborhood.

"But its elaborateness perhaps repels some who would most like to use the books it contains, and promotes the growth of the feeling that the institution it represents is, after all, not the community's own peculiar product, but a mere bit of bounty, or belated justice in the garb of charity.

"It is now generally agreed that school buildings should be used continuously by their respective communities for, say, 4000 hours per year instead of for the 1000 that they are now used. We are rapidly feeling our way to a knowledge of what should be the character of this use. It may soon appear that the schools can properly house library branches. If so, costly and elaborate library branch buildings will rarely be erected, and more efficient institutions that they could ever house will find homes within the same walls that hold that very much larger institution for social betterment of which the library is the handmaiden—the public school."

Here is the plan which was proposed by Dr. P. P. Claxton, United States commissioner of education, at the Washington American Library Association conference, for bringing books to the people of the suburban communities, small towns, villages and open country:

"Every city library should at once be open," he said, "not only to the people living within the corporate limits of the city, but to all the people of the suburbs and of the country districts of the county in which the city is located. If there be more than one city having a library in the county, the proper division of county districts can easily be made. Branch libraries should be established in the smaller towns and villages and at the more important crossroads places, and the schools made to serve as distributing centers. In addition to funds for upkeep from endowment and from moneys collected by city taxation, there should be taxes for this purpose levied on all the property of the county. To bring about such an arrangement ought not to be difficult. The people of the city should welcome the increase of funds made possible by county taxes. The people of the country should be glad to get the use of the larger collections of books in the cities, much larger than they would be able to obtain for themselves, except at the cost of very burdensome taxation. In this way the opportunities of the public library might be extended to all the people of 800 counties or more.

"In the remaining 2200 counties we should establish central libraries at the county seat, where the county courthouse is, where the roads converge—trolley lines sometimes, railroads frequently, country roads always—and to which the people come to transact their legal business and to trade. This central library should be housed in a suitable building, of a good style of architecture, and should of course have a staff of expert librarians. There are few counties in the United States in which there are not several men and women of wealth sufficient to enable any one of them to give $20,000, $30,000, $40,000 or $50,000—as much as may be needed—for a central library building."

"Foreign immigration is doing much to spread the gospel of the free book," says Miss Katharine H. Wootten of Atlanta, "and while the south always has been purely Anglo-Saxon, immigration is fortunately or unfortunately drifting southward, and calls for books in alien tongues and for books in easy English are becoming quite frequent in the larger southern libraries. Formerly the only foreign books in even the larger libraries of the south were those used by American students of languages, but now the alien population make frequent demands on libraries for literature in their mother tongue. In my own library we have not only a German, French, Italian and Spanish section, but we have recently installed a collection of Hebrew and Yiddish books, and have had some calls for books in Russian and Polish.

"It is interesting to note that our Italian section was established at the request of a colony of Italian laborers who came to work in a large manufacturing plant, in some departments of which not a word of English is spoken."

WHY HE ADVERTISES

A prominent business man of Michigan explains why he advertises and why he uses newspapers for the purpose, as follows:

"I advertise in the newspapers because I am not ashamed of my goods or my work and to let the people know about myself, my store and my stock; because I cater to the intelligent class, and they read the newspapers, and I believe in increasing my business; because I can talk to more people through the newspapers at a greater distance in less time and at a more reasonable price than any other way; because my newspaper advertising has brought me greater returns for the least expenditure of my advertising. When I write an advertisement, I am not too stingy to pay for placing it in the best possible medium or to have it inserted so it is attractive; because I know my advertisement is seen and read by everyone in the house where the paper goes."—Ex.

These things ramify to such an extent that it is impossible to estimate how far they may reach into the future. Imagine, for instance, how the descendants of the American refugees in 1914 will be likely to dwell, in 2014, on the experiences of their ancestors.
